Seven Arrested in Reverse Prostitution Sting

Everett Police working with other agencies arrested seven persons in an undercover reverse prostitution sting on September 11th.

The Greater Boston Counter Crime Task Force which consists of officers from the Everett Police, Malden Police and the Massachusetts State Police, conducted "Operation Fall Classic" a reverse prostitution sting in the South Everett area.

The task force working in conjunction with members of the Chelsea Police coordinated the undercover operation in and around the Beacham Street area.

Arrested in the three hour operation were Solomon Gebru, 45 of Cambridge; Michael Montuori, 50 of Wilmington; Pedro Palencia, 56 of Everett; Valmir Pimental, 32 of Everett; Carlos Ramos, 42 of Malden; Derek Santos, 27 of Tewksbury and Daniel Wilson, 31 of Malden.

"The Everett Police Department continues to aggressively deal with illegal activity in and around the City" stated Chief Steven Mazzie. "Undercover and reverse sting operations are just one of the many tools we use."

The seven arrestees were arraigned in Malden District Court on September 12th, and were charged with violating MGL c272 s53A Engaging in Sex for a Fee.

The charges are allegations and the defendants are presumed innocent until proven guilty.
