TWO VETERAN OFFICERS RETIRE

Everett Police Chief Steven Mazzie announced today the retirement of two long serving members of the department.

Officer Philip Morris and Officer Michael Hartnett will both retire later this week with a combined service of sixty-three years.

Morris, a thirty-nine year veteran, began his service in May of 1970 as a full time regular police officer. During his service he worked in the Patrol Division and as a member of the Traffic Division.

Hartnett, a twenty-four year veteran, began his service in March of 1985 as a full time regular police officer. During his service he worked in the Patrol Division and is well know in and around the Everett Square area where he worked a "walking beat".

"Both officers are to be congratulated for their service to the community" stated Mazzie. "We all wish them the best on their retirement from the Everett Police Department."
